MURANÓW CONFERENCE CENTER

The spacious, modern Muranów Conference Center, located in the heart of Warsaw at POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews, offers its guests an auditorium, four workshop rooms, two conference rooms, a foyer and a remarkable main hall. The Center is equipped with an elaborate sound system, cinema projectors and professional stage lighting. The Muranów Conference Center is an ideal place to hold conferences, workshops, film screenings, concerts, television broadcasts and other cultural events.

THE BUILDING

The POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews building was designed by Finnish architect Rainer Mahlamäki. The remarkable, visionary design was selected in an international architectural competition out of over 100 proposals. The building won the Chicago Athenaeum International Architecture Award in 2008 and the Eurobuild Award in the 'Architectural Design of the Year' category in 2013.

MURANÓW CONFERENCE CENTER

The building's simple, geometric façade, covered with glass panels, immediately draws attention. The glass fins are inscribed with Hebrew and Latin letters forming the word "POLIN" – a reference to the legend of the Jews' arrival in Poland.

MAIN HALL

A magnificent, open hall with a height of 20 meters cuts across the entire length of the building. Its soaring curvilinear walls are an example of state-of-the-art architectural innovation. Visitors enter a monumental, luminous space symbolizing the parting of the Red Sea. Enormous glass windows at both ends make the hall radiate with energy and illuminate its interior.

AUDITORIUM

This spacious, functional and air-conditioned space can accommodate up to 480 people. Equipped with professional sound, lighting and multimedia systems, it is the perfect place for conferences, concerts, performances and film screenings. The auditorium is equipped with stage facilities: dressing rooms, cloakrooms, rooms for organizers as well as booths for interpreters. A suspended screen makes it possible to turn a performance stage into a movie theater.
